Gary Power's Fadeout

Francis Gary Powers is no longer in the employ of the Central Intelligence Agency. The U-2 pilot, who was downed over the Soviet Union on a reconnaissance flight, imprisoned, and exchanged for a Soviet spy, resigned from the agency October 6. He is back at Lockheed as a test pilot, the job he left to take the spy-in-the-sky assignment. He will still fly U-2s, but only to test them, not on surveillance missions.
